

On the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for 2017-18, you did not provide parental data. As a result, your FAFSA is currently incomplete. Before considering your option, it is highly recommended to discuss your specific circumstances with a Financial Aid Specialist. Choose the option below that best describes the reason why you did not provide parental information:

Do not submit this form. Use the table below to determine next steps.

Current Relationship with Parent(s):	Required Resolution:
Parents refuse to complete the FAFSA, but continue to support the student.	Parents must provide information and sign the FAFSA in order for the student to be eligible for any federal aid.
Student currently has no contact with parents due to extreme circumstances such as death, abuse, incarceration, addiction or abandonment.	Student must complete an Independent Status Appeal which is reviewed by committee. If approved, the student is considered independent and does not need parental data to be eligible for federal aid.
Parents refuse to complete the FAFSA, and do not support the student in any manner.	Parent must complete a Statement of Non-Support form and submit it to the Financial Aid Office. The parent has refused to complete the FAFSA and no longer supports the student in any manner which includes shelter, auto/health insurance, cell phone plans, etc. If approved, the student is eligible for Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan only.
